

Consul Says Berlin Vital

West Germany together with her allies have confirmed that any further advancement of communism, would eventually mean the end of Germany, and perhaps, the whole of Europe, Dr. Otto Soltman, Seattle, Wash., German consul for the Pacific Northwest, declared here Monday.

Addressing a luncheon meeting of city and county officials and local civic and service club leaders at the Bonneville Hotel, Dr. Soltman emphasized that Russia apparently does not "believe in the western pledge to defend the world against communism, and tries to split western unity." Dr. and Mrs. Soltman are on a tour of the north-west states.

Doubts War

The German consul said he doubted if the Berlin crisis would stir an all out war. "Otherwise, why would we be having a conference?" he asked.

"Anything one would say on the outcome of the Berlin talks would be pure speculation. From the German point of view, Berlin represents a commitment for the west that Germany is not to be battered away. This is defined by solemn treaties. The real basis is the principle of self determination as laid down in the Atlantic Charter and the principles of the United Nations. Concessions in this respect to Soviet Russia would not only deal a fatal blow to Germany, but would also destroy faith and confidence of other nations in the moral and physical strength of the west," Dr. Soltman declared.

Middle Of Europe

He pointed out that as result of War II, Russia gained access to the middle of Europe.

"And because of Soviet Russia's desire to extend the Communist influence, the Russians want more territory in Europe, he said.

The meeting was arranged by the Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Press Agent Switches To Quest For Treasure

By Bob Thomas AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The ceaseless quest for gold has sent many a filmhand figure to an early grave. But here's a different kind of man. He's Phil Berg, who gave up being agent for the top stars to dig for treasures of ancient worlds.

Berg started here as an agent in 1924. He married film beauty Leila Hyams and by 26 had built a huge Sunset Blvd. estate now owned by oilman Ed Pauley. With Bert Allenberg, Berg handled dozens of stars and directors earning millions of dollars, of which the partners took 10 per cent.

But after he returned from wartime Navy service, Berg found something was lacking. In 1948, he sold out his interest in the agency. He explains:

"I just decided there were more important things in life than worrying over whether Loretta Young should wear a bustle in a picture, or whether Frank Capra would make another picture, or if Clark Gable's mustache should be trimmed eighth of an inch."

Picks Archeology

What to do? He remembered his early years as a boy in New York. His family used to live near the Metropolitan Museum, and his nurse often took him there. He was fascinated with the displays of archeological findings.

So he began organizing adventures into archeology. Every January, he and his lovely Leila set out by tramp steamer to Mexico, Greece, Mesopotamia, Egypt, or wherever the digging seems promising. They take with them a fabulous land yacht, a specially designed bus with beds for six, three showers, galley, and lounge.

They meet at the digging site with a band of archaeologists from a university of museum. Berg contributes a major share of what the expedition costs. The finds go largely to the scholars and the

And its exclusive Detergent-Action compounding keeps parts so clean, protects them so well, engines can outlast the car itself.

Try it on your car... American or foreign. RPM Supreme saves money by increasing gas mileage under all driving conditions... and cutting repair bills for the life of your car. Proved in millions of miles... in millions of cars... RPM Supreme halts engine wear for keeps!

What is your toughest driving?

It's the kind you do most: short-trip driving.

For your engine never stays warmed up. Acid, dirt, and other contaminants get in your oil and cause engine wear—unless the oil is drained out every 1000 miles.

Most car manufacturers recommend longer change intervals for constant highway driving. But they all agree, for short-trip driving you need more frequent oil changes.
