Intermountain Weather

Utah: Increasing cloudiness Monday, becoming cloudy Monday night and Tuesday, few showers of light rain north and west portions Tuesday, continued mild. Salt Lake City and vicinity: Increasing cloudiness Monday, becoming cloudy Monday night and Tuesday, few showers Tuesday,

Cloudiness has been increasing over the Pacific states, and light rain has fallen in northern California and over much of Washington and Oregon due to the approach of another storm along the Pacific coast.

Partly cloudy skies and abundant sunshine were enjoyed throughout the intermountain and Rocky mountain areas Sunday, with temperatures ranging from the 40s to lower 50s. The storm which has been causing widespread cloudiness and drizzle conditions from the Mississippi valley northward to the Great Lakes moved eastward into the Great Lakes region Sunday evening, giving widespread cloudiness and light rain from the southeastern states northward to the eastern Great lakes.
